HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
148th GENERAL ASSEMBLY

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 39

ESTABLISHING THE STATEWIDE AFTERSCHOOL INITIATIVE LEARNING TASK FORCE.

1 WHEREAS, according to Kids Count 2016, 21% of children are living in poverty in Delaware and only 38% of
2 children are proficient in math by grade 5 and 49% of children are proficient in reading by grade 8; and

3 WHEREAS, according to a 2014 parent survey conducted by the Afterschool Alliance, more than 26,000
4 Delaware students participate in afterschool programs (18% of children); and

5 WHEREAS, a staggering 11.3 million students nationwide will be unsupervised today after the school bell rings.
6 28,000 of those students live in Delaware - that's almost 20% of students in Delaware. A total of 48,000 students would be 7 likely to participate in an afterschool program if one was available; and

8 WHEREAS, study after study has shown that afterschool programs help our students succeed. Students in 9 afterschool programs are more likely to come to school, stay in school and to graduate. Participation in high-quality
10 afterschool programs is linked to significant gains in standardized tests scores and work habits as well as reductions in 11 behavior problems among disadvantaged students; and

12 WHEREAS, afterschool programs are a lifeline for our working parents - on average they have 7 fewer 13 unscheduled absences when they know their children are safe in an afterschool program; and

14 WHEREAS, at best, these students are missing opportunities to be engaged and energized. At worst, they are 15 exposed to a host of undesirable activities. Crime committed by and against juveniles spikes during the hours after school.

16 WHEREAS, students that don't participate in afterschool programs are 3 times more likely to be truant, use drugs,
17 or use alcohol and 37% more likely to become teen parents; and

18 WHEREAS, afterschool programs save money in the long run. Every dollar invested in afterschool programs
19 saves at least $9 in reducing crime and welfare costs, improving students' school performance and increasing learning
20 potential.
